White Crow Books, United Kingdom, 2012. Paperback. Book Condition: New. 224 x 147 mm. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand .When he and his wife were invited to the New York City Park Avenue home of Judge and Mrs William Cannon for a dinner party during October 1926, Dr Neville Whymant, a professor of linguistics at Oxford and London Universities, had no idea that he would be attending a seance with American direct-voice medium George Valiantine. Mrs Cannon explained to Whymant that she feared he would decline the invitation if she had told him what was going to take place. She further explained that she needed someone with knowledge of Oriental languages to do some interpreting as what seemed to be a Chinese-speaking spirit had been breaking in at prior sittings with Valiantine. Whymant, who spoke 30 languages, was in the United States to study the languages of the American Indian. While having no interest in Spiritualism and being somewhat skeptical, Whymant felt obligated to remain for the sitting. There was no appearance or suspicion of trickery, Whymant recorded in this book, but I mention these things to show that I was alert from the beginning, and I was prepared to apply all the tests possible to whatever phenomena might appear. As soon as the lights were turned off, the group recited the Lord s Prayer and then sacred music was played on a gramophone. Voices came through for other sitters before Mrs Whymant s father communicated in his characteristic drawl, reminiscent of the West County of England. The group then heard the sound of an old wheezy flute not too skillfully played. It reminded Whymant of sounds he had heard in the streets of China. When the flute-like sound faded, Whymant heard a voice directed...
