Excerpt: .dialogues of search. 8 Even positions are taken in which the speaker does not necessarily believe, for the sake of the argument. Thrasymachus says: I may be in earnest or not, but what is that to you?--to refute the argument is your business. 9 Glaucon maintains the cause of injustice, though confessedly not believing it, in order that he may see how the position can be refuted.10 In the Gorgias (462) Socrates gives Polus a lesson in the method of argumentation. In the Phtzdo (ioo ff.) there is quite a long digression on method. The Parmenides is from one point of view, taken as a whole, an exposition of method. When Socrates is involved in certain difficulties regarding the Ideas, Parmenides explains that this arises out of his attempting to define the beautiful, the just, the good, and the ideas generally, without sufficient previous...
