Excerpt: .and docs not state the facts which would enable the court to ascertain and deter-A mine whcther or not he was such employee within the meaning of that word as used in the statute. In discussing this objection to the indictment, appellant s counsel says: In criminal pleading it is necessary to specify facts from which the conclusion flows that one is an employee; it will not do to state the conclusion. It was necessary for the pleader to state, in the indictment, the capacity in which appellant was engaged; and it would be for the court to state, as matter of law, on motion to quash, whether or not under the averments of the indictment a public offence had been committed. The ultimate fact to be found, to constitute guilt, was the fact whether appellant was an employee, or not an employee. It...
