Excerpt: . feared that it will continue to be treated with the neglect which has hitherto been the lot of the whole science of chemistry applied to the arts of building. It happens, unfortunately, that very few architects or engineers are chemists; few chemists are aware of the nature of the questions it concerns us so deeply to have solved. May the author hope that he has advanced the scientific interests of the profession, by calling attention, in however humble a manner, to the points and questions which appear to him to require explanation? GEO. R. BURNELL. London, Nov. 1849. ARTIFICIAL STONE. A Very ingenious improvement has been made in the manufacture of this very useful article by Mr. Frederick Ransome, of Ipswich, who has recently obtained a patent. The main feature of this invention consists in the use of a solution of flint, as...
